

OLD SOLDIERS MARCHED TODAY

Tramped Through Minneapolis Streets To The Tune Of "The Girl I Left Behind."

GREAT REVIEW OF OLD VETERANS

Thousands Cheer The Old Boys In Blue As They Parade
Through The Main Thoroughfares
For Two Miles.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—Let's brave it, comrades! it may be the last march we will ever take part in.
This was the sentiment that actuated the thousands of gray-haired veterans of the Civil war who marched through the streets of Minneapolis today in martial array. It was the spectacular day of the national encampment of the Grand Army, and the parade will be long remembered by the thousands of people who lined the streets along the line of march to witness it.

Pathetic Sight Devoid of all pomp and panoply of the warlike host which marched in the pride of strength and youth, in today's parade there was something pathetic in the thinned-out ranks of the veterans which touched the hearts of all who saw them. With military precision these old soldiers of Vicksburg, the Wilderness, Gettysburg and Appomattox swung into line at the appointed hour, ready for the command to march.

All in Shape
The arrangements for the parade were admirable. Out of consideration for the age and infirmities of the veterans the route was shortened to two miles. It lay over level streets, which were in perfect condition. The physicians of Minneapolis, who, almost to a man, volunteered their services, were on hand to attend to any of the old soldiers who might be overcome by fatigue or heat. Immediate relief was given to all who needed it.

The Route
The signal gun announcing the start of the procession was fired promptly at 10 a. m. The route of the parade, including Hennepin avenue, Nicollet avenue and other leading downtown thoroughfares, all of which were magnificently decorated with the national colors and designs emblematic of the Grand Army and its allied organizations. The principal reviewing stands were grouped about the old city hall, and there the departments marched past in brave-style. At other points along the line viewing stands had been built, while vans and wagons stood at intersecting streets, equipped with chairs. A hearty greeting was extended to the veterans along the entire route, each of the departments being cheered as it filed past. The scene was one of enthusiasm all along the streets, and and young turning out to greet the fast-fading ranks. Throughout the parade was strictly military, no wonder, children, or grotesque costumes being permitted in the column. A few carriages, driven to the left of the column, contained veterans who were physically unable to march.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 15.—The cornerstone for the new St. Boniface cathedral was blessed today with imposing ceremonies and in the presence of a large gathering of Catholic clergy and laymen from all parts of the archdiocese. Archbishop Langevin officiated, assisted by a number of prominent priests. The program included the celebration of high mass and sermons in French, English, Polish and German. The cathedral, which will not be completed for two years, is expected to be one of the handsomest church edifices in the Dominion.

in New Haven.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15.—The eleventh annual convention of the International Association of Municipal Electricians opened in New Haven today with several scores of members present. In connection with the convention a large exhibition of electrical apparatus is being made.
The organization does not take up any question of wages, strikes or the like, but exists rather for educational purposes. Prominent among the members are F. A. Cambridge of Winnipeg, Clarence R. George of Houston, W. H. Thompson of Richmond,

RAN FIRST CAR FOR AN ELECTRIC ROAD

German Who Started the First Car

Berlin, Aug. 15.—An interesting festivity has just taken place at Lichter-felde, near Berlin, where Inspector Beyer celebrated the day when, 35 years ago, he ran the first electric railroad in the world. It was in the year 1881 that Herr Werner von Siemens, the founder of the great Berlin firm of Siemens and Halske, built the first electric road from the Anhalt railway station to Lichterfelde. Herr Beyer was the first man in charge of the new conveyance, uniting in his person the function of motorman and conductor. He afterwards rose gradually to the post of chief inspector of the now enormously increased electric railway system of that part of Berlin.

HOME STATE IS FOR BRYAN VERY SOLIDLY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 15.—Both democrats and populists of Nebraska are holding forth in state convention here today. Both parties are enthusiastically for Bryan for the presidency and it is possible that they may get together on a state ticket. George W. Berge of Lincoln appears to be in the lead for the gubernatorial nomination, though the names of several others are mentioned. The democratic convention is expected to express its preference in the matter of the United States senatorship, for which G. M. Hitchcock of Omaha and W. H. Thompson of Grand Island are the rival aspirants.

ACTUAL TARE HAS A COMMERCIAL VALUE

Starlight Brothers' Complaint Causes Considerable Trouble in Department.

Washington, D. C., August 15.—In the matter of the protest of Starlight Brothers against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs at the port of New York, the Board of General Appraisers has rendered the following decision:
"The importers contended that the collector erred in allowing only 13 pounds tare for each bale of imported tobacco, and that the allowance should have been 16 pounds per bale. actual tare. The tobacco is packed in wooden coverings composed of bales, and a cloth is also wrapped over the bales. We find from the testimony that the actual tare on said fifty bales is 16 pounds as claimed by the importers. The allowance made by the collector was made under article 1653 of the Customs Regulations of 1899, without reference to the actual weight of the coverings.
The protest is sustained as to fifty bales of the merchandise in question and is overruled as to the remainder."

ALASKA ENJOYED FEELING OF HOLDING AN ELECTION

First One Of Its Kind Ever Held So Far North In The Polar Circle.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—Far-off Alaska enjoyed its first election Tuesday. The territory is now entitled to two delegates in congress, and the first men to come to Washington in that capacity were selected at the polls yesterday.
Recent advices from Juneau and from other points in the territory say the campaign has been most unique.
It has been a short contest, as the nominating conventions were not held until early last month. Owing to the great area of the territory and the lack of rapid transportation the candidates have not been able to appear on the stump in more than half a dozen of the larger towns. There is no regular political organization, party lines are not sharply drawn and local issues are mostly absent, and there is little except pride in the newly acquired franchise to bring out the vote. For several reasons the vote is not expected to be large. The chief reason is that one-fourth of all the voters are men busy with mining operations in camps more or less remote from the voting places. Furthermore, the mining men in the placer regions are busier just now than at any other season of the year, and it is likely that many of them may find themselves too busy to go a long distance to vote. Nevertheless, this first general election is attracting no little attention and the result is awaited here with interest.
The republican candidate for congress is C. D. Murane. The democrats are poorly organized and the election of Murane would be assured if it

Fort Des Moines and detachments of the Iowa national guard joined the Philippine veterans in the procession, which was one of the most interesting ever seen in this city. Thousands of spectators lined the route of the parade and enthusiastically cheered the soldiers. Colonel A. S. Frost of Evansville, Ill., acted as grand marshal. The reunion concludes this atternoon with the final business sessions, at which officers for the year will be chosen and the date and place fixed for the gathering of the society next year.

GAME BIRDS MAY BECOME EXTINCT

PROTECTION OF CERTAIN CLASS-ES IS VERY LAX.

LAWS ARE NOT ADEQUATE

Change for Improvement Is Great—Laws Should Be Altered to Suit Cases.

Although fishermen at Lake Koshong say that the water is filled with wild-rice this season and large numbers of game birds will be attracted to that place, those who are interested in the fall shooting say that the large flocks of game fowls which once inhabited this lake are slowly diminishing in number and unless better protection is given the birds they will some day be entirely extinct as is the case of other species of fowl which once inhabited this region. Those who are interested in game protection of all kinds are aware that while most of the states carefully protect such game as the partridge and deer, the laws for the preservation of migratory birds, as ducks, woodcock, snipe and plover, is inadequate. The result has been a far greater destruction of game of this class than the annual increase could replace. The famous canvasback has been almost entirely driven away from its former haunts, and is becoming rare in parts of the country where it was once found in great numbers. The woodcock, one of the most beautifully colored game birds of all North American birds, is fast disappearing. One of the chief reasons why it is so fast diminishing is that instead of going far north to breed it breeds in the temperate regions within the limits of the United States. These birds are still found in the South, but it is only a matter of time when that region also will have to form some kind of protection for the bird. The chance of a game bird raising its brood in the north in safety is a remote one. The American wild pigeon, which once darkened the sun for minutes at a time, is now entirely extinct and the wild dove which in the first half of the last century were fed to the people at dinners in the New York hotels have been absolutely exterminated and are only seen today in mounted groups upon the shelves of the national history museums. Of all the important families of game birds none are vanishing faster than the plover and snipe, properly known as the shore birds, bay birds and other common names. In most regions of our country these birds are protected at certain times of the year, but at others they have as yet received no protection even at the breeding time. In the southern states they are still found in reasonably large numbers, but at the northern lake points, where they were once snared and shot in great numbers, they have nearly disappeared.

The plover, another bird of the snipe family, which was found in marshes and pastures, is also becoming scarce. In the eastern states where this bird once lived in abundance, there is scarcely one today to remind the people of that locality of its existence. Other varieties of the plover have disappeared absolutely from large sections of the country where up to a few years ago it was to be found in the proper seasons in hundreds or even in thousands. These birds which once traveled northward along the eastern coast in the Spring are now only migrating in the central and western states in small numbers. The dozen or more species of the large snipe family, which are or were game birds of more or less importance, has an outlook hardly more promising than the duck or plover. At least one of them which was formerly not uncommon along the Atlantic coast as far east as Cape Cod, thought never as numerous as farther south and west, is already practically extinct except in some of the western and southern parts of the country. No immediate attempt to save this bird will ever prove successful. The woodcock is now mentioned as threatened with extermination and there is every reason to expect that if it does not receive prompt attention it will soon be of the history class. Those who are interested in the preservation of the game birds feel that as much protection ought to be given to this sort of fowl as there is to the extermination of the crow and other birds of danger and harm. Those

TRIBUTE TO FORMER
BOWER CITY MAN

J. T. Wright Gives a Few Facts Regarding the Late E. J. Barrows.

J. T. Wright has kindly given the Gazette the following sketch of the late E. J. Barrows whose funeral occurred Monday last.

Mr. E. J. Barrows was one of Janesville's prominent and successful hardware dealers for twenty years, his store being long Hall & Sayles are now in a long wooden structure. He was active in business, social and church life. Many years superintendent of the Sabbath school of the Presbyterian church, bringing joy and sunshine to all about him. He took an active part in the Y. M. C. A. work and was always found on the right side of every question. The late Dr. L. J. Barrows so long a leading physician and to whom we are largely indebted for our charming Oak Hill cemetery, being its secretary and treasurer in its formative period, was his brother. Mr. Barrows made his home in Denver, Colorado, where after a period of retirement from business, closed his earthly career Friday, the 9th inst. That which was mortal was brought here by loving daughters and placed by the side of his wife and their mother. Mr. Barrows leaves his present wife and children, Oliver, Bronson, Grace, Catherine F. and Jessie D. Barrows.

Rev. J. H. Tippett conducted the services at the chapel and grave. The bearers were Mr. Albert Watson, James Shearer, William Blatz, Martin Hanson, J. M. Whitehead and J. T. Wright.

CLUB-NIGHT AT THE SINNISSIPPI LINKS

Supper and Informal Hop Were Enjoyed by a Number of Young People Last Evening.

Only one of the matches—that of Al Schaller, scratch, and Fred Baker, handicap 12—was played off in the Richardson medal contest at the Sinissippi gold links yesterday afternoon. Al Schaller won 4 up and 3 to play. The expected contest between A. P. Burnham, 12, and H. S. McGiffin, 10, did not materialize. About a score partook of the delicious club-night supper and a goodly number went out in the evening to attend the dancing party, the success of which Samuel Echlin had agreed to stand sponsor. At the latter's direction myriads of Chinese lanterns were employed to illuminate the broad veranda and the other appointments were appropriate and quite as much appreciated. Roy Carter and A. C. Benker's orchestra provided the inspiration and the festivities continued until nearly twelve. Among the visitors present were: The Misses Grace and Maude Hardee, of Rock Lodge, Florida, who are visiting at the home of Warren Skelly, Walter Pifford of Reno, Nevada, Mr. Lyle of Madison, Miss Cargill of La Crosse, Judge and Mrs. Adams, Miss Natalie Dalton, and Mr. Hull of Beloit.

WEATHER MAN MADE
HIS WEEKLY REPORT

Cloudy Weather; Prevalent Throughout the Entire State the Past Week.

The weather during the first part of the past week was partly cloudy to cloudy, warm and sultry with many heavy thunderstorms in the southern half of the state; the latter part was clear, moderately cool and very pleasant. On Monday, the 6th, there was rain in the southern section, the fall being heavy in the extreme southeast portion. From Monday until Friday the humidity of the air was unusually high, and this caused a very sultry and oppressive atmosphere although the temperature remained about normal during the time. There were frequent showers in the southeastern portion on Tuesday, in the middle and southern sections on Wednesday and Thursday and along the east coast Thursday night. An unusually heavy rainstorm occurred in Dane county during Wednesday afternoon, doing considerable damage to buildings, bridges and crops. During this storm 4.45 inches of rain fell at the Weather Bureau station in Madison between 5:25 p. m. and 6:45 p. m. There were heavy thunderstorms throughout the central portion of the state on Thursday. The weather became settled and cooler during Friday and the two remaining days of the week were clear and very pleasant.

The mean temperature for the week averaged slightly above normal for the state. The maximum temperature for the week occurred at most stations on Thursday or Friday and ranged from 80 degrees to 88 degrees.

The precipitation was very unevenly distributed over the state, the total varying from a trace in the extreme northwest portion to 5.12 inches in the central portion of the southern section.

WISCONSIN RATES
CUT DOWN MORE

REDUCTION MADE BY STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

REFERS TO CHEESE NOW

In Some Cases As Much As Ten Cents a Hundred Are Lopped Off.

The state railroad rate commission has taken another slice off the rates charged by the railroads in Wisconsin for freight service. A decision was rendered declaring that the rates on cheese were unreasonable and must be cut down, also that rates on other materials in the cheese business were too high and likewise must be reduced.

The matter came before the commission in complaints from the Southern Wisconsin Cheesemen's Protective association making charges against the Illinois Central, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the North-Western roads. The complaint alleged unreasonable rates on cheese, lead foil, whey butter and other materials and products.

The cheese industry is of great importance in Wisconsin, particularly in the counties of Dane, Green, Iowa and Lafayette. The companies appeared and answered, denying that the rates were unreasonable, and saying with respect to the rates on lead foil that the cheese men sold it with the cheese and made a great profit out of it, so that the freight rates were not too high.

Gist of the Decision.

After carefully considering the evidence adduced at the general hearings, the commission rendered a decision of length, a syllabus of which is as follows:

Field (1) that the existing concentration system brings advantages to all the parties in interest, but that the concentration rates, lack uniformity and system, and that, therefore, a new schedule of concentration rates should be adopted, such a schedule being herein prescribed; (2) that the existing rates on cheese from concentration points to Milwaukee are excessive and should be reduced in accordance with the commodity tariff hereby prescribed; (3) that carriers shall hereafter bill lead foil as lead foil and not as tin foil, and charge the rates applicable as lead foil; (4) that existing rates on whey butter are excessive and that this product shall be lowered from the second class basis of rates and grouped with third class commodities; (5) that all matters connected with this complaint, not otherwise disposed of, relate to interstate commerce, and should be brought before the interstate commerce commission.

The New Rates.

The rates announced by the commission in the decision rendered today are a substantial reduction and will mean much to the farmers, dairymen, manufacturers and others interested in directly and affected by the cheese industry. The old rates, as well as the new ones are as follows:

"He that will not sail until all danger is over must not put to sea at all." And the merchant who is afraid that advertising may not pay will never find out. "For certain"—not until he gets over "the tunds".

These are busy days for candidates for county offices. The state railroad commission have again cut the rates; on carrying cheese, this time.

The Marinette Eagle-Star supports Davidson for Governor and that is like Stephenson's home paper, too.

Secretary Houser is going to make those democrats do their investigating as he wants them to or not at all.

The G. A. R. veterans in Minneapolis are again assembled to honor themselves and the nation by their organization.

The Beloit Free Press says that Cooper is a good man. No one denies it, but there are better men and Nolan is one of these.

The campaign automobile has again been brought into play again. The machine is two years out of date now and must be behind the times.

District Attorney Gilbert of Dane county is having enough experience to fit him for the attorney generalship he seeks, right at home.

Because Minor did not agree with the Free Press in its tirade upon the conservative republicans two years ago he is doomed for slaughter.

In the Pfister hearings in Milwaukee it is peculiar how the memory of some of the witnesses is taxed to remember matters they stated as facts.

Senator La Follette began his official campaign against Davidson yesterday by touring the western half of Dane county and then going over into Grant and Iowa.

Mayor Becker of Milwaukee has thrown away the key to that city in honor of the Eagles and the Sentinel offers a reward of a thousand kegs of beer if it is found.

There are so many people seeking office this fall that some of them are bound to find themselves poorer and wiser when the primary ballots are counted.

President Roosevelt says he will not be a candidate for re-election. In fact, his private secretary wrote this fact to an Illinois woman and she told it.

Babcock is still fighting for his re-nomination in the third congressional district. Bab will keep on fighting for some time to come from the present outlook, which is more than favorable.

The failure of the Milwaukee Avenue Bank of Chicago continues to be a menace to the prosperity of the poor depositors of that institution, that was systematically looted by its president. Wine, women and song appear to have been the leading ideas of his shallow pate and the depositors paid for all three enjoyments.

Saturday La Follette will invade Rock county. His speech at the Opera-House Saturday night will be interesting to listen to, to say the least. When he spoke here last he was a republican Governor urging republicans to defeat republican nominees. Now he is a republican United States Senator seeking to dictate the vote of the people who were boss-ridden until his primary blit came into effect.

THE PROSPERITY

In commenting upon the prosperity of the First Congressional district and one of the important reasons why Cooper should be defeated for re-nomination and Nolan selected, the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter says:

"At a fair estimate there is not less than $1,000,000 invested in tobacco warehouses and equipment in this congressional district; add to this the amount locked up in curing sheds on farms and you place another million to the investment. Then when you consider the growers of the district are paid better than a million dollars annually for their tobacco and a million more is paid out each year for the labor in handling this product you gain an idea of what this tobacco industry means to the limited portion of this district. Surely it is of enough importance to deserve the attention of our member of congress who is generally supposed to look after the things material in his district. It is, with shame, however, that we have to confess that our representative, Mr. Cooper, is willing to sacrifice this great industry to a maudlin sentiment of a greater duty to the Malay race in the Philippines. And he it said to his discredit that he was the only member of the state delegation who could so far forget his own interests lay with those of his constituents. When the Philippine bill was up before congress The Reporter tendered Mr. Cooper an opportunity to defend his position and though he agreed to do so, he failed utterly to defend his course. Under these circumstances it is inconceivable how anyone connected with the tobacco industry or the beet sugar industry even can support Mr. Cooper for re-election. More than that, they should exert every effort to encompass his defeat."

FOREIGN COMMERCE

The foreign commerce of the United States in the fiscal year just ended aggregated 2,970 million dollars, thus falling but 30 millions below the 3-billion dollar line. If the trade with Porto Rico and Hawaii, which was included in our foreign commerce prior to their annexation, were added, the total would materially exceed 3 billion dollars. Both imports and exports exceed those of any earlier year.

The total imports of the year were 1,226 million dollars, exceeding the highest record of any earlier year (1895) by 109 millions, and the exports were 1,744 millions, exceeding those of the highest record, year (1905) by 225 millions. The excess of exports over imports was 517 million dollars, exceeding that of 1905 by 116 millions, but falling below that of each year of the period 1898-1901. Comparing 1906 with the figures of five years earlier (1901) imports show an increase of 403 millions, and the exports an increase of 256 millions. Comparing the figures with those of ten years earlier (1896) the imports show an increase of 447 millions, and the exports an increase of 361 millions.

An analysis of the trade figures for 1906, with the purpose of determining the classes of articles in which this growth of imports and exports occurred, can not now be made in precise terms, since the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor has not yet completed the details for the twelfth month of the fiscal year. Taking, however, its figures of the full imports and exports of the year and basing an analysis thereof upon that made by the bureau for eleven months, it would appear that about 970 million dollars of the exports were agricultural products and about 600 millions manufactures, the remainder being products of the mines, fisheries, forests and miscellaneous. These figures, if approximately accurate (and they are based upon the bureau's analysis for eleven months), would indicate an increase of approximately 25 million dollars in agricultural exports and an increase of 190 millions in exports of manufactures since 1901, and an increase of 400 millions in agricultural products and of 372 millions in manufactures since 1896.

On the import side a similar analysis shows that the total of 1,226 million dollars' worth of imports in the full year is composed of approximately 595 million dollars' worth of articles classed as "manufactures," materials," 205 million dollars' worth of articles classed as "manufactures ready for consumption," 175 million dollars' worth of merchandise classed as "articles of voluntary use, luxuries, etc.," and about 255 million dollars' worth of "articles of food and animals." These figures are necessarily approximate, and based upon the known details for the eleven months and the known total of imports for the twelfth month of the year. Should they prove approximately accurate they would indicate that of the increase of 403 million dollars in imports in the past five years about 245 millions occurred in "manufacturers' materials," 75 millions in "manufactures ready for consumption," a little over 50 millions in "articles of voluntary use, luxuries, etc.," and about 33 millions in "foodstuffs and animals." Comparing 1906 with 1896, the increase in all imports is 447 millions, of which about 290 millions occurred in "manufacturers' materials," 60 millions in "manufactures ready for consumption," 80 millions in "articles of voluntary use, luxuries, etc.," and 18 millions in "foodstuffs and animals."

PRESS COMMENT.

Unlocked and Wide Open. Milwaukee Sentinel: We have a standing offer of 1,000,000 barrels of beer for any eagle who will find the key to the city.

Your Sounding-board's Acute. La Crosse Leader-Press: The booming of Cannon for president is beginning to sound like a roar of artillery.

The Unpopular Richard. Exchange: The news that Richard Harding Davis will electioneer for Winston Churchill gives the impression that Mr. Churchill is not much of a politician.

Has Tough Row to Hoe. Oshkosh Northwestern: This is the week that Senator La Follette will start out to see what he can do toward convincing the people against their better judgment.

Chances to Exult Are Few. Rockford Register-Gazette: A Beloit man has the distinction of owning a hen that can crow. But so little happens in Beloit that the hen finds it hard to keep in practice.

Maintains Discreet Silence. Milwaukee News: Singularly enough, in exercising his right as a citizen to discuss candidates, Mr. La Follette has not yet moved to discuss the candidates for secretary of state.

Ah—Here's the Explanation. El Paso Herald: It is likely the fault of translating from the original Russian which causes so much trouble in distinguishing between a strike and a rebellion in the czar's dominions.

New York's Provincialism. Chicago Record-Herald: The New York World publishes an article under the title of "New York Minds Its Own Business." It does so probably because it refuses to recognize the fact that there is any other business.

Milwaukee Should Be Ashamed. Fond du Lac Bulletin: Milwaukee is having a hard time to raise the sum necessary for a half million dollar auditorium. That is not to the credit of Milwaukee, one of the richest, thriftiest cities in the country.

Large-eared Resent It. Chicago Tribune: Men with large ears, of whom there are several in the congregation, will resent the attempt to prove, from photographs of the Stensland and Hering ears, that crime and ample auricular appendages go together.

No Room For More Doctrines. Sheboygan Journal: Two Mormon missionaries are trying to convert the residents of Hingham. Most of the residents out there already are either stalwarts or half breeds, and they haven't much room for additional beliefs.

Some Old Rates Prevail. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Notwithstanding the Lawson explosion and the New York investigation, the big insurance companies have not yet reformed their methods to the extent of offering a "live-and-let-live" policy.

Not Universally Condemned. Exchange: Just for the sake of showing that hostile opinions to the cigar are not unanimous may be cited the action of the British admiralty in deciding that henceforth cigar tobacco shall be carried by war vessels and available for sale to the seamen.

Duluth's Shipping Embargo. Evening Wisconsin: Duluth's shipping embargo as a result of the wrecking of her big bridge by a passing steamer is rather startling. Hereafter mariners will hope that when the bridge is struck the steamer that hits it will knock the draw out of the channel.

After Their Vulgar Money. Chicago Record-Herald: Mrs. Humphry Ward is coming to this country, perhaps for the purpose of finding out whether she stated the case strongly enough when she said all Americans were insufferably vulgar. Incidentally she will lecture the vulgar things and get as much of their money as possible.

Dissent Come Into the Open. Milwaukee Journal: It begins to look as if "Uncle Ike" was supporting Davidson. Their local paper in Marinette supports him and the Milwaukee paper gives plenty of space to things supposed to be in his interest, like the speech of Hall of Madison. But neither Uncle Ike nor his Milwaukee paper dare to come out in the open.

High Jinks With Halfbreeds. Marion Advertiser: Most of the halfbreeds in this vicinity act just as if their anatomies had been bit by porcupine quills and their "stand pat" affiliation is wavering between Davidson and Leinroot. Maybe a few of them will stand by Lemuel because the stalwarts are going to vote for Davidson. Gentlemen, it's fun we are having up here.

Hagemeister's Little Quip. Green Bay Gazette: The Milwaukee Journal announces that State Senator Hagemeister of this city is for Leinroot for governor, because, as that paper aptly puts it, he believes that when the halfbreeds hear of it they will drop dead. That might be an inducement for the senator, but it would be about the only one that would persuade him to give the Superior man any encouragement.

Frightful Situation of an Editor. Exchange: A Nevada editor is in trouble because he recently published an obituary article concerning a man who had made a fortune as a promoter of mining interests. The obituary was headed, "Death Loves a Shining Mark," but the printer made it "Mining Shark." Three husky sons of the deceased gentleman survive him.

Surgery Made Her Happy. Philadelphia Record: Starting to death because in her greed she had gorged herself with corn and grass so that it could not pass into her grinding mill or gizzard, and her car looking like a toy palloon, an old hen belonging to William Davis, an old soldier and printer, passed through a novel surgical operation yesterday. With his jackknife Santhe Jonathan M. Reiman of the third ward, Mr. Davis' fellow veteran of the civil war, cut "Biddy's" cravat open, removed nearly two quarts of obstructing matter and sewed together the opening. Soon she began cackling as if an operation was an everyday occurrence and in an hour laid an egg. She has been put on short diet, though.

Appleton's Chautauqua Deficit. Fond du Lac Commonweal: The city of Appleton, which made its first venture in the Chautauqua business this season, has its experience and a shortage of $600 to show for the undertaking. A part of the shortage has been raised by individual subscriptions, but there is still the sum of $500 to be provided. A Chautauqua course is counted a good advertisement for a city, but whether or not it is worth the price, which Appleton has found it necessary to pay, may be something of a question. It is possible, however, that the fact that this was the first year made the burden of expense somewhat heavier than it would be in a second season, and that another year would find plainer sailing.

ELLAL ENT MEEKS IS TO WED AGAIN

Her Last Husband Obtained His Bride Through the Instrumentality of the Gazette Columns.

Mrs. Ella Meeks of St. Louis, who has been living in Janesville for some time, and E. J. Damon of Pierpont Manor, New York, secured a marriage license of the county clerk and a special permit to wed at once of Judge Fingfield today. The ceremony was probably performed this afternoon, though this is only a surmise. Mrs. Meeks was formerly Miss Ella Lent of Janesville. On Feb. 11, 1904, a man named J. F. Meeks, employed in a Chicago shoe factory, wrote to the Gazette with regard to an article he had read in the Chicago Tribune to the effect that forty old maids in Janesville had organized to make a valiant effort to secure husbands. Mr. Meeks intimated that he would take one of them and enclosed at letter addressed to any of the forty in which he gave his qualifications. This was deemed a rather unusual and interesting method of courtship, and the letter was published in the Gazette's news columns. On August 17, 1904, Ella Lent of this city was married to him. They came to the Bower City and reside here for a short time, later removing to St. Louis, where Meeks committed suicide about a year ago in a fit of despondency, alleged to have been induced by the conviction that his affections for the wife he had secured in such an extraordinary manner were not fully reciprocated. Mrs. Meeks is a bun-haired and quite comely. She wore a white peek-a-boe waist with pink bows on the shoulders when she appeared with her husband-in-prospect at the courthouse this morning.

Classified Poem

(For the Gazette.)

Now all ye contractors in classified town, Here's a classified ad that may give you renown. For Janesville has just had a big cav-in And don't jist whar the repairs do be gin.

The council will set and then set again And then like as not it will set in and rain.

And that hole will git bigger and bigger you see, So the quicker it's mended the better 'twill be.

There was never a loss without some small gain, And I think that the street cars are sure to remain. For the money is rolling into their till And the cars speed over the track with a will.

The railroads, too, I do declare, are getting pretty near their share. For all the people for miles around are porin into Classified town, but there's danger of accidents on their track.

And some people who come here may never git back.

And I'm awful glad I was right on the ground When that terrible hole in the earth was found, And I shan't have to risk my life on no train In order a view of the wreck to obtain.

Wal, the council will set and set over again And then like as not it won't hatch annything, Fur they ain't very good at calcalatin And folks git tired of their settin' and waitin'.

So now ye contractors in classified town, Quit standin' a hawin' and hawin' around, Fur whoever gits men, teams and dirt enough To fill up that hole will be jest the stuff.

And he's sure to win for himself renown, By mendin' the hole in classified town, So git right to work at your calcalatin, There's no time to be standin' here watchin' and waitin'.

—By V. H.

Bill Bryan Rebuked. El Paso Herald: William J. Bryan is prominent in the democratic party but he is not an official therein, neither is he a dictator, and his letter to the national committee ordering Roger Sullivan to resign as a member was not only impertinent but foolish. It will be time enough for him to become autocratic after the party has selected him for its head.

OSCAR BROWNELL

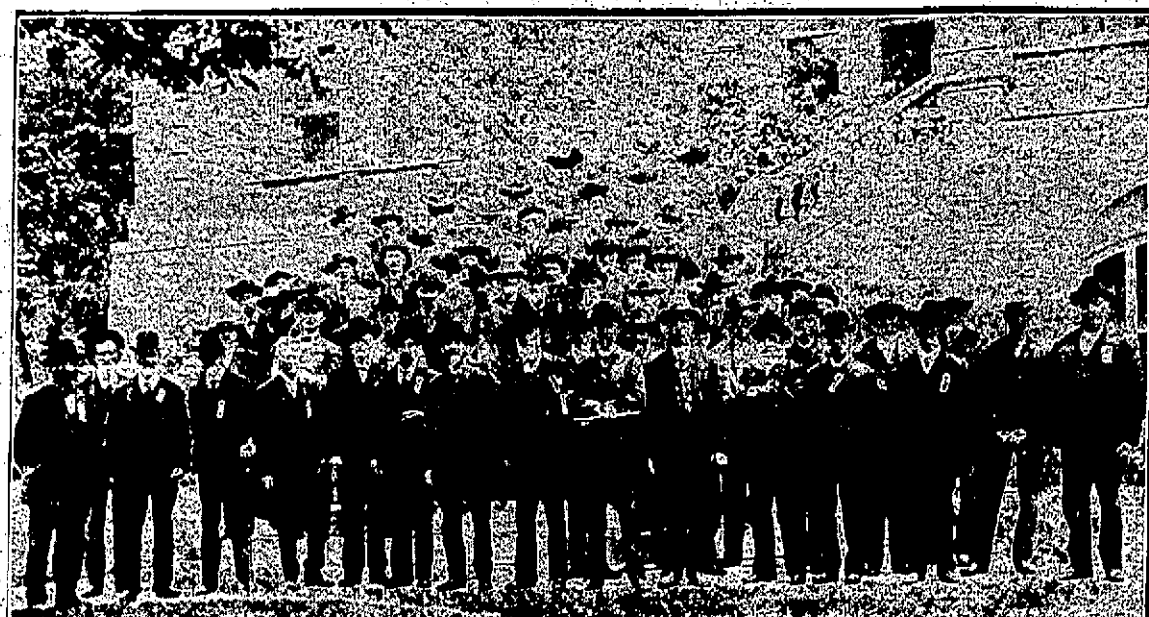

BACK ON A VISIT

RETURNS FROM PANAMA CANAL ZONE, WHERE EMPLOYED.

ENJOYS WORK AT ISTHMUS

Says That It Will Be Two Years Before the Canal Work Shows Actual Progress.

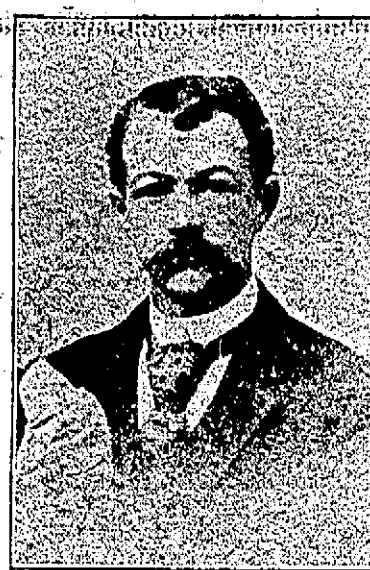

Oscar Brownell, who left Janesville last November to work for Uncle Sam at his new possession and plaything, the Canal Zone, returned home this week for a sixty-day rest. During the entire time he has been sick, day and night, but one hour from his work and that was because he left his keys at home and had to go back after them. This speaks very well for the climate and conditions in the Zone.

LAST YEAR GROUP OF 13TH

but Mr. Brownell intimates that his own personal care of himself has had much to do with his physical condition.

At Hospitals
Most of Mr. Brownell's work has been done on the new hospital being erected near Colon. This is the same hospital where Miss Humphrey is stationed and to which Miss Knudtson went a few weeks ago. The work here is almost completed now and the government will then turn its attention to other necessary structures along the right of construction. In speaking about the climate Mr. Brownell says that every day there are trade winds which blow from half-past eight in the morning until night, making the air cool and comfortable on the Gulf coast side and but for these it would be very hot indeed. The quarters of the Americans here are at Cristobal, where new dwellings have been erected for them.

OSCAR L. BROWNELL

to live in Colon and Cristobal are adjacent to each other, like two states joining. In Colon the houses are not so good, although there has been much improvement since the business portion was burned out some months ago.

Some Sights
In speaking of the natives, Mr. Brownell says they live in huts, not houses. One peculiar feature of their life, the killing of cattle and chickens, which the government is doing away with, particularly impressed Mr. Brownell and the fact that when a beef is to be killed the natives hang it up for several days and then hang it up by one foot for several hours before actually putting an end to the beast. This is done so all the blood will run to their heads. The government now personally supervises the killing of all animals that are used for food and it is being done away with in the Canal Zone at least. Mr. Brownell also attended a bull fight that according to his description must have been anything but tame. Sixteen bulls were used and several of the fighters got all that was coming to them from the animals before they were finally killed.

Is Going Back
Mr. Brownell expects to return to his work when his sixty days are up. He hopes to be able to take his wife with him, as he is in line for married quarters and if he obtains them will set up housekeeping. This includes everything that is needed for the house, except the ice, linen and odds and ends. The government furnishes the rest. The men who are now working in the interior complain that their life is monotonous; they see nobody but their fellow workmen and it is very hot, tedious work. In speaking of the canal work proper Mr. Brownell did not believe that much real work would be shown inside of two years. Huge dams are being put up now and the houses for the workmen are being constructed as rapidly as possible.

13TH INFANTRY

HOLDS REUNION

FIFTY-FIVE VETERANS WERE ASSEMBLED HERE TODAY.

60 IN MINNEAPOLIS TODAY

Sent a Telegram Conveying Their Greetings and Best Wishes—Officers Re-elected.

Fifty-five members of the 13th Wisconsin Infantry, accompanied by their wives and families, gathered at the court house today for their 45th annual reunion. Sixty comrades gathered at the national encampment in Minneapolis sent greetings by telegram. Captain Pliny Norcross, president of the organization, presided at the meeting this afternoon and Secretary Clark read an interesting report of what had transpired during the year preceding. Ten members had been mustered out of the regiment and this, according to the information he had received, and the whereabouts of a large number, remained unknown. Replies to his letters had been received from nearly every state in the Union.

Address of Welcome.
Capt. Norcross delivered the address of welcome and throughout the meeting passed some very interesting comment on the matters brought before the meeting. The small death quota of ten convinced him that the regiment had been made up of pretty strong and rugged men. Of the 1,700,000 men who came out of the war alive, only about 900,000 had passed away and this was a better life record than the first-class insurance companies could show. "We have good health," he said, "and everybody likes us. The U. S. government is good to us. The Women's Relief Corps loves us; we're treated well wherever we go. It's our duty as well as our right to live as long as we can. Let's stay here, not only for our own comfort, but for another reason—we're pretty good examples to the young men of the country. Nearly every day we are hearing of cashiers and other men holding responsible positions who do not seem to appreciate that honesty is one of the essential things of life. It may be said of all of the old soldiers, or nearly all, that they were and are honest."

Officers Re-elected.
The officers were re-elected by unanimous voice and a vote of thanks was tendered Secretary Clark for his untiring efforts. A committee is to be appointed to secure and present to him a suitable badge as a testimonial of the esteem and gratitude of his fellows. A quartette composed of George Paris, C. N. Van Klee, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Yates sang "Columbia," "The Star Spangled Banner," and a number of other patriotic selections which were received with great applause. The matter of conflict with the national encampment in the time of meeting was taken up and by a vote the officers of the regiment were empowered in case of emergency to change the time of the regular meeting. Always the third Wednesday in August. Throughout the afternoon addresses were made by Comrade Hall of the U. S. Treasury department, Adjutant Clarke, and a number of others. A collection of fifty or more photographs of members of the regiment, taken in war time, were forwarded for inspection by Comrade Scott of Atlanta, Georgia, and brought back many pleasant memories. Some of the Janesville members of this regiment are: Capt. Norcross, Major F. F. Stevens, Capt. Edgar Ruder, and Adjutant William Ruder.

Miss Holt Entertains: A party of twenty young ladies were entertained by Miss Nettie Holt on Prairie avenue Monday evening in honor of Mrs. F. J. Holt. The evening was spent in listening to a musical entertainment given by those present and to the playing of guessing and serving games. The prizes were won by Miss Mabel Westlake and Miss Mabel Rustad. Light refreshments were served and a very good time enjoyed by all.

OBITUARY

Edward Bernard.
Edward Philip Joseph Bernard, son and only child of Mrs. A. E. Bernard, passed peacefully away at a quarter to two this afternoon after a long and patient struggle. His death occurred at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Birmingham, 422 S. Franklin street. Deceased was 15 years and 6 months old. His father, Philip Bernard, died when Edward was but a few weeks old. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Disheartened because he had been afflicted with ill health due to advanced age, Joseph Havas checked aged 91 years attempted to commit suicide by gassing his throat with a razor at Milwaukee, Wis.

Jewelry valued at $35,000 was stolen from a case belonging to some Viennese merchants at the Earl's Court exhibition at London.

HUGE ROCK HITS A

HOUSE NEAR BLAST

Stone Strikes Roof of the Connors Home, but Does No Great Damage.

Sunday while blasting stone out of the pit at the C. & M. & St. P. turntable in order to put in a new foundation for the new turntable a large rock alighted upon the roof of the home of Mrs. Connors, near the roundhouse. The shingles were loosened and the boards which support the roof badly smashed, but fortunately for the inmates it did not go through into the house. Mrs. Connors was carrying some dishes in her hand at the time, which she dropped upon hearing the noise above her head, breaking them into a hundred pieces. The stone was about the size of a football and should it have gone through the roof would undoubtedly have done great damage.

Check on Gallery Gods: Gallery Gods who have on occasion annoyed the more quiet element of the Myers theatre patrons are to be kept in check this season. William Reed, who was at one time on the Milwaukee police force has been retained to quell any disturbances that may arise just under the shingles.

Daybreak Launch Trip: Shortly after sunrise this morning George McKey and a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Valentine, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Sutherland, the Misses Juliet Bostwick, Marcia Jackman, Elizabeth McKey, and Margaret Jackman, and Douglas McKey embarked on a launch trip on the Rock. Breakfast was served at 5:30 a. m. at the picnic grounds seven miles upriver and the party returned home in time for the gentlemen members to reach their offices at the usual early hour.

Auto Party Coming: The Messrs. Clark and Story, Chicago piano manufacturers, have telegraphed the management of the Hotel Myers that they will arrive here with an automobile party of eight from Rockford this evening. Tomorrow the two machines will resume the journey to Watertown.

Many Took Trip: The Eagle excursion train, which left here this morning at 9 o'clock was well decorated with bunting and other emblems and had nearly 200 on board.

Cubs Beaten Again: The North End Juniors defeated the Second Ward Cubs again today by a score of 25 to 8. The game was most exciting and would have continued if a goat had not eaten the ball at the end of the ninth inning.

AMERICA'S APPIAN WAY

Facts About the Old National Road, Whose Restoration Is Advocated

Origin and Present State of the Famous Highway From Cumberland, Md., to Vandalia, Ill.—A Well Built Road Which Has Had a Century For Its Justification—Magnitude of the Original Enterprise

THE building of national highways by the federal government as well as the undertaking of experiments to determine the best methods of road preservation are subjects of great importance to the attention of large numbers of citizens throughout the United States and the hearty approval of some of them, says the New York Post's Washington correspondent.

Ever since the foundation of the government national road building has been advocated by many persons as a far greater function of the general government than road distribution and some of the other gift schemes for which the federal treasury is drawn upon to pay the bills. The tremendous and rapid increase in the use of horseless vehicles not only for pleasure seekers, but as a business, trucks taking the place of delivery wagons of all descriptions, has naturally attracted new and strong support to the good roads movement, so that the extent of public sentiment in favor of improved and well kept thoroughfares connecting the principal cities of the country is greater now than ever before. It may be believed that the popular demand for up to date roads between cities is fast approaching that unanimity of opinion which has long required city streets to be kept in a condition approaching as near as possible the combination of permanency, smoothness and noiselessness.

Some years ago General Nelson A. Miles, then the head of the American army, lent his name to a movement for building a broad and direct automobile thoroughfare across the country happens two or three hundred miles more miles of improved roadway than the more populous sections of the south or east. The more recent development of federal roadbuilding plans has sought to overcome that opposition by proposing the construction to warrant expenditure of the money. It is well understood that hard work would be required to get congress to undertake any such plan unless constituents came to the front in no uncertain way to present their requests for improved highways throughout the most traveled sections of the country.

Restoration of Old National Road.

To this end a movement has already been started for the restoration of the old National road from Cumberland, Md., to Vandalia, Ill. People who have ever heard anything about this thoroughfare know that it is one of the historical landmarks of the country. It is 102 years since the first steps were taken toward building the great highway from the farther edge of Virginia out through the then little known west to the frontier. There is probably no other thoroughfare in the whole country that can compare with it for the distinction of being called the American Appian Way. No public highway save the Roman military roads of centuries ago was ever constructed probably on a scale of grandeur nobility or designed for more enduring usefulness. The idea was a remarkable one in its inception and inspiring in its prophecy of the expansion and prosperity of the American republic. Like the farseeing plans of L'Enfant for the Capital City of the Nation, it has many private corporations which undertook the maintenance of the right of way as a business proposition. They collected toll from all those who used it and were thus enabled to keep it in fine repair. Toll roads having been abolished practically everywhere in the last two or three decades, this national highway reverted to the states through which it runs; and, while still kept in fairly good repair, it is not as well maintained as in the days of private ownership.

Magnitude of the Enterprise.

Earnest advocacy of the restoration of the road to its intended conditions as a national thoroughfare comes from the Virginia Society for the Preservation of Antiquities. Its members view the building of this road as the most important enterprise undertaken by the federal government in its first half century of existence. The magnitude of the work can best be appreciated by reflecting on the fact that in all subsequent history congress has never undertaken another such extensive project, in spite of the ever increasing popular demand for good roads. But no doubt means can readily be devised if popular sentiment is once brought to bear on congress.

The money for the original construction was raised from the sale of lands ceded by the far extending state of Virginia, the dominating factor in federal affairs of colonial days. At the beginning of the last century the valley of the Ohio was fast filling with settlers, most of them trudging west from Virginia. The Washington-Bradock road, following an Indian trail across the mountains, was the route of the pioneer emigrant. A general demand arose for better means of communication between the old commonwealth and the Ohio valley, and Virginia agreed to cede to the federal government all that part of her domain north of the Ohio river on condition that a percentage of the money derived from the sale of land there should be assigned to the construction of a public highway connecting the fringe of Virginia settlements with what was then the western frontier. Little was then thought of the road after a century's use, with but little in the way of recent repairs. At some of the places along the route old covered wooden bridges, constructed from sixty to eighty years ago, are still standing, apparently good enough to carry traffic for years to come.

In the department of agriculture there is a division of good roads for instruction in permanent roadbuilding, and the work could be undertaken at a comparatively small expense. It is natural to suppose the roads of the country will oppose any movement to improve the public highways, but with the development of motor cars and trucks of every description there will be a steadily increasing public sentiment on the other side as well.

The whole subject is an interesting one, especially as relating to the historic Cumberland-Vandalia road, and in connection with the centennial celebrations of the towns along the way a concentration of effort in the next congress is anticipated in support of a national good roads campaign.

Unique Street Lighting Plan.

Trustee J. C. Steele of Santa Monica, Cal., has suggested a unique plan of street lighting, whereby an eight candle incandescent light, placed on the porch of each residence, would obviate the use of arc lights and would not only illuminate the streets, but the residences as well. A system of porch lights could easily be installed, and would cost the city little more than is at present being paid. It would light the streets better than under the present arrangement. It is believed, Globes will be provided by the householders. The wire attachment will be made in such manner that the electricity used will be computed on the city's meter, and paid for from the street lighting fund. It is probable that this novel plan will be favorably considered by the board and, if feasible, adopted.

Swiss Doctors of Journalism.

In view of the proposed establishment of a university of journalism in New York the United States consul at Brunswick draws attention to the institution that is being given in Germany and Switzerland, says the London Times. During the present summer session lectures on various aspects of journalism are being delivered at the universities of Leipzig, Berlin and Heidelberg, as well as at the Technical high school of Danzig and at the commercial colleges of Leipzig and Cologne. At the University of Bern a course is being given on the editing and news service of a newspaper, with practical exercises, while at Zurich, as the consul points out, the degree of doctor may now be obtained in journalism as well as in any other political science.

Trouser to Keep Elites Off Horses.

A horse in trousers is interesting Canadiana, N.Y. The horse belongs to Charles Parshall, the Canadiana agent for the Humane society, says the New York Sun. He observed that his horse suffered severely from the attacks of horseflies of late, so he conceived the idea of taking some old trousers legs and placing them on the animal, fastening them to the fly net. The horse is now able to eat his rations without stopping to fight flies, and the plan is as much of a success as was the old horse blanket to protect horses' heads from the heat, which also had its origin in Canadiana years ago.

Much of It in Good Repair.

Those who have toured over the road for long distances recently have been surprised to find so much of it in good repair, although its construction was begun more than a century ago. The work dragged along, however, until 1844, and then after a time passed out of the hands of the government to "Give orders and then do it yourself, and be free from anxiety." Tell some member of the family to watch the store-ads carefully for you—then do it yourself, and you will not miss that buying opportunity you are looking for.

DISCUSS DRAGO DOCTRINE

PAN-AMERICAN CONFERENCE IN TANGLE OVER ADOPTION.

Each Nation Urged at Its Discretion to Appeal to Hague Tribunal to Study Debits and Credits.

Rio De Janeiro, Aug. 15.—The sub-conference on the Drago doctrine Tuesday agreed on a resolution even more general than the one on the programme.

It recommended that each American nation at its discretion request The Hague tribunal to study the questions of the forcible collection of public debts and pecuniary claims of all nations.

The Argentine representative alone opposed the resolution, which finally was agreed upon.

The opinion is expressed that the resolution will be accepted unanimously and adopted by the conference.

Later, it was announced that the Uruguayan representative had withdrawn from the Drago doctrine agreement, which resulted in a slight amendment to throw the whole resolution out of the programme by a two-thirds vote. However, it was still considered probable that the resolution would be adopted.

The Pan-American railway committee of the conference discussed two projects, one to the effect that the construction of the entire road which is within its own territory.

An amendment to the report of the committee on the reorganization of the bureau of American republics provides that no maps issued by the bureau shall be considered official unless approved by all the countries interested.

NEGRO TROOPS GO ON RAMPAGE

Kill Bartender, Wound Policeman, and Spread Terror in Texas Town.

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 15.—Evidently angered because of a search made among their ranks in an effort to apprehend a negro who attacked Mrs. Leon Evans at her home here Monday evening and whom she asserted was a negro soldier, members of a battalion of negro federal troops stationed at Fort Brown, near here, entered Brownsville Tuesday, became unruly and fired several volleys down Main street.

As a result, Frank Natus, a bartender, was killed and a policeman wounded. The public buildings were looted, and the streets were filled with debris.

Twenty-three of the bullets fired entered the home of Louis R. Cowan, many went through the residence of F. B. Stark and several bricks were shot from the walls of the Miller hotel, near the window where guests were sleeping. After their depredations the negroes returned to their garrison.

The battalion of Fort Brown is composed of companies B, C and D, Twenty-C First Infantry.

DEATH OF A FAMOUS REPORTER

Man Who Took Noted Trials and Speeches Dead at Washington.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Francis H. Smith, one of the first official reporters of congressional debates, died Tuesday at Washington, Conn., where he was born March 11, 1829. For many years he had been a prominent banker here. Daniel Webster was one of the first men, Mr. Smith reported in congress, and later Mr. Smith reported for the Associated Press the court-martial of the Lincoln conspirators and the subsequent trial of John H. Surratt. Another famous trial he covered was that of Gen. Daniel Sickles for the killing of District Attorney Koy. When he resigned his position at the capital in 1875 he declared that he never again would make a single report. His health had broken down under hard work, but he recovered, and was active in Washington commercial life.

Will They Do It?

"Now," says an advertisement, "there are 6,000,000 wage earners in England, if all will hang together. It is not quite now we should hang it ourselves. It rather reminds us of Franklin's declaration of independence. 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, therefore, forbids the exercise of this right, when by patient and reasonable resistance, redress may be obtained. But when a long train of abuses, usurpations, pursuing the same line of conduct, evinces a design to reduce us to absolute Tyranny, it is our duty, it is our right, to throw off such Government, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. We declare, therefore, that the United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. In witness whereof, the delegates have signed their names to the Declaration of Independence, and the Congress has approved and passed the same. Done at the City of New York, the fourth day of July, 1776."

Say Sun Is Losing Heat.

Together with French and German scientists, no less eminent an authority than Prof. Charles L. Doolittle, director of the Mount Observatory, St. Louis, the University of Pennsylvania, asserts that the sun is gradually losing its heat. For years the diameter of the sun has been contracting at the rate of 56 yards a year.

And That's the Limit.

Some wise guy said there was nothing equal to the hatred of a scorned woman. This fellow probably never rubbed up against some of the so-called politicians and heard them express their opinion of the men who they blamed for kicking them out of the public trough—Fargo Forum.

In the Dublin zoo, which is famous for its success in breeding and keeping lions, an interesting innovation is the plan of keeping a number of creatures about the grounds in a state of liberty. The latest liberated specimens which visitors now meet in a shady path are the emu and ostrich.

Office of the street assessment committee, city of Janesville, Wis. Aug. 11th, 1906.

Sealed proposals will be received at this office until the 20th day of August, 1906, at 2:00 in the afternoon for furnishing all the material and doing all the work necessary and required for filling the washout on Washington street, near the intersection of the Linden avenue, according to the specifications for the same on file in the office of said committee. The contractor shall state from what source he expects to obtain his material for said fill, the date on which he will commence said work, the date on which he will complete the same, the whole of said work falling in which he shall pay to the city of Janesville, Wis., as liquidated damages the sum of twenty-five (25) dollars per day for each and every day's delay in completing said work.

The proposal must be accompanied with a certified check for two hundred ($200.00) dollars payable to the treasurer of said city, and to be forfeited if the bidder fails to sign the contract and provide the bond required therefor within ten (10) days after being notified of the acceptance of such proposal. The bond must be signed with not less than two (2) sureties who shall be freeholders of the state of Wisconsin and shall certify as to their responsibility and by their several affidavits show that they are worth in the aggregate at least the amount of the entire contract price in property not by law exempt from execution. Surety companies authorized to do business in this state will be accepted in lieu of personal sureties.

Plans for proposals and blank contracts and bonds for said work will be furnished on application at this office.

The said committee reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Signed,

TOBACCO TALK FOR TOBACCO GROWERS

What is Being Done in Virginia by the Tobacco People Just Now.

Washington, D. C., August 15.—Business is dull on the Virginia tobacco markets owing to the fact that practically all of last year's crop has been sold, only a few remaining lots being disposed of. Receipts of both dark and light tobacco have been exceedingly light. The market has been quiet but firm on prices.

The offerings of Burley tobacco on the Louisville market were larger than for some weeks, but a large part of them were of common and medium grades. The tobacco was poor in color and there were no fancy bright grades in evidence. The heavy offerings caused a drop in prices and a large number of rejections. A total of 377 hogheads of dark tobacco were offered at auction; the quality of which was fair. The growing Burley and dark tobacco crops are growing satisfactorily. Stocks increased during July 3,648 hhds.

Sales of leaf tobacco by auction during the week amounted to 2,187 hogheads and private sales to 287, a total of 2,474, as compared with 2,612 for the same week of 1905. The total sales since January, 1906, have amounted to 105,411 hogheads, as compared with 88,065 hogheads during the same period of 1905. Burley sales amounted to 15,378 of which twelve were of the old crops. The sales of dark were 596 hogheads, old crops amounting to nine hogheads. A total of 433 rejections were recorded during the week and since January 1st these rejections have amounted to 11,523. Receipts for the week amounted to 2,831 hogheads, and since January have totaled 80,250 hogheads.

PORTO RICO HAS A RECORD TO RETRIEVE

Man Confronted With the Islands Tells of the Great Crops Now Grown There.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., August 15.—Mr. Scott Truxum, formerly an engineer at Denver, and now commercial agent of the Porto Rican government, while in Washington this week talked of the tobacco industry of that island. "The tobacco business in Porto Rico is growing rapidly," said Mr. Truxum. "The hurricane of 1899 which beat down coffee groves, uprooted tobacco plantations and washed away fields of sugar cane, temporarily crippled the island financially. But tobacco and sugar, being annual crops, it was possible under favorable circumstances, for them to recover rapidly. What apparently saved the situation was the fact that under American rule sugar and tobacco, as 'home industries,' came into American ports free and enjoyed the protection of a tariff which assuring reasonable profits, made it easy to secure money with which to rehabilitate these industries. As a consequence the exports of tobacco to the United States rose from $253,747 in 1896 to $2,573,703 in 1905 and the imports from the United States to Porto Rico rapidly increased as the capacity for purchases increased in Porto Rico."

FRONTIER DAY GAMES ATTRACT VISITORS

Cheyenne, Wyoming, Celebrates Its Annual Holiday Known as Frontier Day.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 15.—Wyoming's annual fête known as the Frontier Day celebration is now under way. Crowds are coming in from Denver and the east and strangers line the streets for blocks. Many cowboys are in the city from all parts of the state, and they, with the Indians in their red and yellow blankets, are attracting much attention from the visitors. Rough riding contests, roping contests, relay races for women and numerous other festivities make up the program. Many open air attractions have been provided and the native element, as well as the visitors, are giving themselves over to two days of merriment and good fellowship.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN QUESTION ASKED?

French Paper Receives Funny Reply to the Question of Rockefeller's Wealth.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, Aug. 15.—A question addressed by the "Gaulois" to its readers: "What would you do first if you suddenly became possessed of the wealth of a Rockefeller?" has elicited a host of answers showing that the majority of the readers have taken the matter in a frivolous spirit. Some replies, however, are serious, and a few pathetic. Here are some of them culled at random: "I would buy horses and carriages, so as to avoid being annoyed by over-charging cab drivers."

"I would give rich rewards to cabinet ministers who remained honest and poor after the expiration of their term of office."

A sympathetic soul writes: "I would offer a large prize to any man who succeeded in curing Mr. Rockefeller's indigestion."

Cupidity is illustrated by the answer: "I would not spend the money, but amass more millions."

Finally, a true Parisian proposes to enable all men over 50 who have never been able to afford the pleasures of the boulevard cafes to spend their days—in the cafe of their choice.

Justice of the Peace William Duff, a farmer aged 50 years, died from the effects of a gunshot wound received in an altercation with four Italians at Newcastleton, Pa. There are fears of lynching in case the Italians are caught.

THIS CIRCUS PLEASES

Ringling Bros. Have an Enterprise That Excels All Others.

Friday, August 31, is the day fixed for the exhibition of the Ringling Brothers' world's greatest shows in Jamesville. Readers of this paper are familiar with the magnitude of high character of this famous show. No circus has ever reached the public heart like this one. Other exhibitions come and go, but the impression they make is short-lived, while the memory of the great Ringling Brothers' shows is a lingering pleasure, and makes their return warmly welcome. Circus ideas that what curiosity generally originate with this great enterprise, and whenever copied by other shows never create the same interest or sensation. The reason is not far to seek. The Ringling Brothers not only expend extravagant sums of money to get the truly novel and arctic features, but they insist upon securing the ablest known performers to interpret these acts. Each season presents a program of surprising freshness and enjoyment. Everything goes along with the speed of perfect system, and the myriad and bewildering bill is finished before the slightest tinge of unrest is felt. Acts follow each other without the slightest delay, and the delicate and heavy properties are arranged without friction or notice. The theatre stage manager is made to appear like a much overworked and puffed-up person after witnessing the masterly manner in which the immense program of the great Ringling Brothers' shows is handled. This circus is the standard of the world, more than twice as big as any other, and must be copied by all that seek success. Last year it was thought to have reached the climax of size and inventive genius, but this season's display proves this idea to have been fallacious. Not only are there a greater number of imported ring features and startling home creations, including the spectacular production of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold," but all the other departments of the show like—the menagerie, aquarium, and horse fair—have been enlarged nearly double. Two giraffes, supposed to be the best of their race, the only rhinoceros in captivity, a real baby elephant, and a seemingly incredible herd of forty elephants, are exclusive features in this remarkable zoological collection. The model horse of aristocratic lineage and perfect symmetry is shown with Ringling Brothers' marvelous exhibitions, as seen nowhere else in the world. These horses not only have rare beauty of form, but they exhibit amazing intelligence, and in their graceful and difficult exercises present a feature of indescribable attraction.

Admission tickets and reserved seats will be sold exhibition day at Ringling Brothers' downtown ticket office for precisely the same prices charged at the ticket wagons on the circus grounds.

POPE'S ENCYCLICAL STIRS UP FRANCE

PONTIFF'S DECISION MAY CAUSE RELIGIOUS STRIFE.

SEEKING TO MODIFY LAW

Opinion Prevails That Vatican Wishes to Create a Situation Compelling the Government to Compromise with Church.

Paris, Aug. 15.—The pope's encyclical to the archbishops and bishops of France prescribing their attitude with regard to the church and state separation law attracts widespread attention here and its probable effects are the subject of animated discussion by the press and public and particularly by the clerical and official classes responsible for the execution of the law.

A pontifical messenger arrived here Tuesday morning bearing the document to Archbishop Richard, who soon afterward gave out the document for publication. The substance of the archbishop summarized the views in the following words: "The pope has spoken, and we bow with submission and joy to his instructions."

Fear Religious Strife.

While this reflects the general attitude of the hierarchy, yet a considerable element among the clergy receives the decision by the pontiff with disappointment and regret as being likely to inaugurate an era of religious strife.

At the archbishopric it was stated that no steps have yet been taken to insure the continued operations of churches. It is understood that the encyclical was accompanied by instructions concerning the means the hierarchy should adopt.

The view generally prevails that the Vatican seeks to create a situation compelling the government to enter into negotiations for some form of church organization that will be acceptable both to the church and to the state. However, there is no indication of the government's willingness in that direction.

Opinions of the Press.

The government journals strongly disapprove of the encyclical. The Temps says: "The resolution to afflict all friends of religious peace is very apparent. Uncompromisingness dominates pontifical circles. An immense majority of reasonable French Catholics desired the benefit of the liberal provisions of the separation law. It goes without saying that the pontifical decision will not change the sentiment of liberal-minded Frenchmen who, above all, wish for religious peace. The separation law contains broad and tolerant dispositions and is accepted as such by unprejudiced men. The anti-clericals even raised objections to the liberality of the law. One wonders to what hopes or chimera the pope is now clinging. Has the lesson of the inventories taught Rome nothing? The only outcome of pontifical resistance is that the church herself, deprives her devotees of the worship to which they are attached by old customs. The strange paradox occurs that the religious authorities refuse the churches the powers offered them by the law. This sensible and clear-minded nation, desirous of peace before everything, never will admit the decision to be the fruit of truly Christian or logical and sensible inspiration."

La Croix, representing the clericals, says: "The pope's wish will be realized. Catholics are about to unite in obedience under the direction of the bishops. Despite possible trials, the church will emerge finally victorious."

Murders Are Shot.

Helsingfors, Finland, Aug. 13.—The trial by court-martial of the Sveaborg mutineers commenced Saturday, and Lieut. Kochanovsky and Emilson, aged 20 and 21 years, and five soldiers were found guilty, shot and buried in a common grave without ceremony.

To Fight Forest Fires.

Lumbermen in western Montana have organized to fight forest fires, said George McGregor, of Butte. In past years there never was cooperation on the part of the big timbermen, with the result that a small fire that by concerted effort might have been extinguished, gained such headway as to destroy millions upon millions of feet of valuable timber. The plan is to raise a fund of $6,000 with which to buy chemicals, which will be stationed at all lumber camps and near-by towns, so that in case of a fire volunteers may have the means to extinguish it before it gains great headway.

Education and Ability.

Prof. Felix Adler, founder of the Society of Ethical Culture, and formerly a member of the Cornell faculty, not long ago was speaking of a position in an educational institution. It was vacant, and the professor was to select an incumbent. "I am not quite sure," he said, "whether to get a man of education from New England or a man of ability from Chicago."

Speaking a Word for the Boys.

There are worse things on the streets than boys playing ball. There are automobiles that give grown folks palpitation of the heart and street cars that maim infants. Heavily laden are not to be mailed down these fine evenings.—Portland, Oregonian.

Charles Lehman, a motorman who was shot by an Italian whom he ejected from a car, died at Harrisburg, Pa.

WANTED TO KNOW SECRET

Tippler Evidently Convinced Minister Was Concealing Information of Much Value.

A very aggressive and highly successful crusade in favor of temperance has recently been going on in a certain Scottish city, and a young minister, whose eloquence is marred only by the unfortunate remarks he sometimes makes, has been able to persuade several heavy drinkers to enter the temperance field. Meeting one of his converts one afternoon, he stopped him and inquired how he was getting along. The man kept well back, and the minister's suspicions were aroused. "Ah, Robert," said the reverend gentleman, sadly, "I'm afraid you've been drinking. I can smell it in your breath. Robert didn't deny the impeachment—in fact, he couldn't—and just remained speechless, his eyes fixed on the ground in front of him. "Now, Robert," continued the minister, "you never smell the odor of liquor in my breath."

"No, sir, I never did," was Robert's reply; then, in a most anxious tone of voice, he added: "What d'ye dae for it?"

Poor Little Chap!

Of the late Miss Johnstone Bennett, in whose death the American stage lost a comedienne of exquisite talent, an actor said:

"Miss Johnstone Bennett's success came easily to her. She could have succeeded as a writer had she wished. She never went out but she returned with a host of striking episodes she had observed."

"One day in the early summer she said to me, as she lunched on some delicious fruit:

"I was slumming yesterday. As I passed a fruit stand piled high with black bananas, soft strawberries, green watermelons and the like, a little ragged chap of six or seven stopped before it, and I heard him say to the dealer, as he pointed toward the strawberries:

"'Gimme a cent's worth o' rotten-uns.'"

Got the Trade.

"That druggist Gettemwell seems to have nearly all the trade hereabouts," we say to the resident of the neighborhood. "Yes, and he deserves it. You see, like all druggists, nine-tenths of the people who deal with him want to buy stamps. So he devised a scheme whereby he treats the back of the stamps with a medicated mucilage. If you have dyspepsia you ask for persinized stamps; if you have a cold you ask for quinine stamps, and so on. He charges a little bit extra for the stamps, but he holds his trade—and manages to overcome the annoyance of handling that profless line of goods. He is now endeavoring to perfect some scheme to utilize postal cards in the same way."

Are You One of The "DIDN'T HAVE TIME" FOLKS?

The man who didn't have time to read the classified ads. last week had plenty of time since then to discuss the "luck" of a friend of his who bought a "bit of land," which he found advertised, and on the next day re-sold his bargain at a clear profit of a hundred dollars.

The man who DIDN'T HAVE TIME to read the want ads. last week spent an hour yesterday telling his friends about the "good fortune" of a neighbor who found a better house in a better section of the city and at a lower rent—a house that was advertised on one of this man's "busy days."

The "DIDN'T HAVE TIME" folks are missing more things this week than last—they are missing more opportunities to buy and to sell today than they missed yesterday; and they are spending enough time wondering why they "didn't happen to stumble onto a good thing" themselves—to read and to answer those of the want ads. that might appeal to them.

HARM IN STERILIZED MILK.

Process Is Said to Destroy the Bone-Building Part of the Product.—Pasteurization Better.

Nothing has been found that will quite take the place of mother's milk, says a writer in Outing. Therefore a mother should nurse her baby, if possible. When it is not possible, the best substitute is pure cow's milk raw, after it has been duly modified in accordance with the age of the child. Raw milk, however, is unsafe for baby during warm weather, on account of the germs that are sure to develop in it. Pasteurization, therefore, must be resorted to in summer. But don't sterilize the milk. It has been discovered that in the process of sterilization the bone-forming qualities in the milk are destroyed along with the germs, and that infants fed upon it for any length of time are likely not only to have soft bones, but rickets, scurvy and the most distressing diseases of the joints. The difference between sterilized and Pasteurized milk is simply in the degree of heat to which they are submitted and the length of time the heat is applied. Pasteurization consists of heating the milk to 150 or 160 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes. Milk is sterilized by heating it to 212 degrees for one hour or an hour and a half.
